

LEGION SIGNS 300 TO CONTINUE DRIVE

Time Limit Extended Week In Hope of Reaching 500 Goal.

One hundred and forty-four new members were secured by the Jansville American Legion in its week drive, according to paid-up applications turned in at the regular meeting held at the Armory last night. The men whom they have signed bring that number to 197, making a total of 309 belonging to the organization.

Because members expressed a belief that still more members might be procured, the drive has been extended another week. Work was just getting under way, it was explained, by last night.

The campaign will be next Tuesday night, when the eight team captains will dine at the Grand hotel to check up. With the present progress that would mean a total of approximately 500 men on the roll.

To Appear on Delegates. All friends of the present members have been canvassed. The work from now on will be to round up as many of the balance of the 1,500 ex-service men in the city as possible.

As soon as the final reports are turned in next week, delegates will be appointed to attend the state convention of the legion at Green Bay, Wis., at the end of this month. The organization is allowed two representatives for the first 200 and one for each additional 100.

During the meeting last night, Commander Robert J. Cunningham gave a short talk on the state convention of the legion at Green Bay, Wis., at the end of this month. The organization is allowed two representatives for the first 200 and one for each additional 100.

Following the brief business session, a routine entertainment was given, including a considerable amount of singing. A black-face comedian was also on the program. The entertainment was given by the legion and the legion is now under consideration of an executive committee to transact much of the routine business of the post.

BRITISH MANDATE OVER PALESTINE TURNS JEWISH DREAM INTO REALITY

Judge Julian W. Mack (above) and Judge Louis D. Brandeis. Dotted line on map indicates old boundaries of Palestine; solid line the new.

When the Turkish delegates to the peace conference affix their signatures to the treaty of peace the dream of the Jew will have been realized. The Israel that crumbled under the tyrannical heel of Titus in 70 A. D. will be reborn in its native religious glory, but on the basis of the Jewish state. The American political line that is of the Jews of the U. S. have anything to say for the treaty gives Great Britain a mandate over Palestine, and England has pledged herself to make the Holy Land the homeland of the Jew. The Zionist movement are Judge Louis D. Brandeis of the U. S. supreme court, and Judge Julian W. Mack of the U. S. commerce court.

BREEDERS UNITE TO SELL $20 PIGS TO YOUNG FARMERS

Cooperation in putting burg breed livestock in the hands of boys and girls of Rock county is asked by the rural teachers in a letter sent out today by R. T. Gussner, county agent. In conjunction with the Duane-Jensen breeders' association of the county, a plan has been worked out whereby the organization will furnish a pig about three months of age for $20 to any boy or girl of the county. The idea is that by next spring the pig will be worth about $100 to the owner.

Boys and girls taking a pig will be enrolled in the Rock County Pig club and be given all privileges of members. Prizes will be given at the Janesville fair this fall, and others will be given in the fall of 1921, for which the boys and girls may compete.

Money derived from the sale of the pigs will be turned over to the Duane-Jensen breeders' association in the state and to employ a field agent.

Marines were first established in England as a nursery to man the fleet.

HOOVER'S SUGAR WARNING BARED

Cable to Wilson Urging Action to Prevent Shortage Made Public

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, June 1.—Copy of a cablegram sent from Paris, July 23, 1919, by Herbert Hoover, to United States Grain corporation, for transmission to President Wilson declaring "that determination of the sugar policies requires immediate consideration" was made public in the house today by Representative Tinkham, republican, Massachusetts.

Wilson is Blamed. "The cablegram was read by Mr. Tinkham in the course of a speech in which he charged that responsibility for the high price of sugar was placed squarely on the shoulders of the president," declared that the president could relieve the situation even now by following Mr. Hoover's advice and ration non-essential consumers.

Hoover said in his message that it was necessary to make important decisions as to sugar control in this country in order to anticipate the marketing of a new beet harvest and to settle the policy with Cuba for the next year.

Hoover Outlines Situation. "Any continuation of control will require action by congress," Mr. Hoover said, "and it must embrace appropriations, the continuation of power and speculation, and distribution. The only alternative course is for the sugar equalization board to announce its cessation of control at an early date prior to the marketing season of domestic beets and the cane sugar crop from the old crop purchased by them at the market prices from day to day until they are exhausted."

As guests of Mrs. H. Trumbell, Miss Agnes Trubekka spent the week-end at her home in Franksville. Harry Duncan spent over Sunday with his mother at her home in Litchfield, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Daley, Woodstock, are visiting at the home of Mrs. Anna Ruppel, Madison.

Why a Majority of the Smaller Cars Come on Goodyear Tires

Last year more cars using 30x3-, 30x3½-, or 31x4-inch tires were factory-equipped with Goodyear Tires than with any other kind.

This is plainly a result of the high relative value produced in these tires for the smaller cars by Goodyear's enormous resources and scrupulous care.

They represent the same intense endeavor to supply utmost satisfaction in tires that has laid the basis for the marked preference which exists everywhere for Goodyear Tires in the larger sizes.

This real Goodyear value in tires is available for your Ford, Chevrolet, Dort, Maxwell, or other car using one of these sizes, at our nearest Service Station. Go there for these tires and Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes.

30x3½ Goodyear Double-Cure Fabric, All-Weather Tread. $23.50

30x3½ Goodyear Single-Cure Fabric, Anti-Skid Tread. $21.50

Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes are thick, strong tubes that reinforce casings properly. Why risk a good casing with a cheap tube? Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes cost little more than tubes of less merit. 30x3½ size in water. $4.50 proof bag.

The baseball season has opened out at the firm studios on the coast by the looks of this picture of May Allison. May has joined the Metro ball team so there will be one star here the pretty little actress is playing catcher, but surely the manager is making a mistake to let the pitcher face such an attractive catcher. He will get all fussed and miss a few heart beats and probably throw over his left shoulder. The opposing team comes to Miss Allison as a token of their esteem and so it will not matter how the pitcher flukes.

May looks smart in her uniform, but we rather like her in her flirty ruffie frocks, don't you?

What's become of the prejudice against automobiles because they frightened the horses

NOW cars are everywhere. The horses have gotten used to them—and so has everybody else. Think of it! This year the American people will spend nearly a billion dollars on tires alone.

Tires are one of the biggest items on the car owner's bills.

Hardly a Saturday, when you motorists drop in to "tune up" for a Sunday trip, that one or more of you doesn't tell us something of value to our business. Sooner or later it comes back to you in Service.

Service is what the car owners of this community are looking for nowadays.

And especially the small car owners, who put service first in figuring their motor-ing expenditures.

III

Just because a man has a moderate-price car is no reason why he should get any less service out of his tires.

We believe that the man with the small car is entitled to just as good tire service as the man with the big car—and both are entitled to the best tire service they can get.

That's why we represent U. S. Tires in this community.

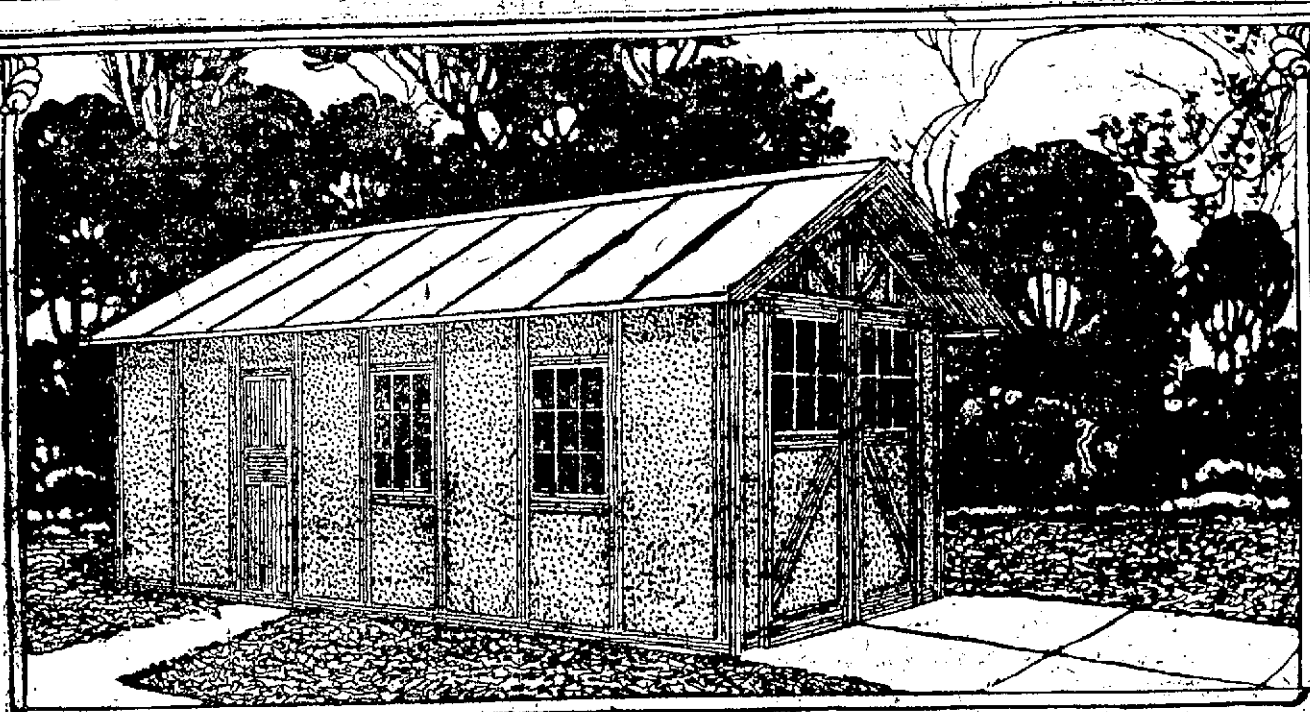

And why more car owners—large and small—are coming to us every day for U. S. Tires.

IV

Come in and talk to us about tires. We're here to help you get the kind of tires you want.

PRIVATE GARAGES

A Pro-Slate Garage solves for you the problem of housing your car satisfactorily, immediately, and at a low cost. We can deliver to your home, on a few hours' notice, one of these garages, of just the right dimensions to fit your requirements. It will come to you in sections ready to erect, quickly and substantially.

Distinctive

A Pro-Slate Garage presents an appearance of unusual beauty, and harmonizes perfectly with any setting. The walls are of a rough, stucco-like material, in a beautiful moss-green shade, paneled off by English timber work; the roof is a crushed-slate, dull Indian red, a color combination that is unusually attractive.

Fire and Weather Proof

The outside material is made of crushed

slate rock makes these garages fire-safe. The construction itself renders them weather and windproof. There are no cracks in the Pro-Slate walls to open up in dry weather and let in the dust. The beautiful stucco-like finish never requires painting, thus eliminating the expense of upkeep.

The woodwork is already painted; the roofing is a part of the roof panels themselves; the doors and windows are all glazed; and all hardware is included.

You must see Pro-Slate Garage to really appreciate its wonderful beauty and substantial construction. The Extra long single Garage is illustrated above. Other models are the Double Garage, the Standard Single, and the Ford Special.

It will be well worth your while to call and inspect our exhibit. Come today, if you can.

On June 2, 1773, John Randolph, of Roanoke, Virginia, was born. His life reads like a romance. Brilliant in wit, eloquence and even eccentricity he was for more than a score of years, the most talked of man of his times and in the early days of the government his was the voice that frequently changed set programs of policy and determined future action.

MEETING THE HOUSING SITUATION.
Janesville is meeting the housing situation, in part, at least. While the plans recommended by the Chamber of Commerce as to financing a large program of house-building, the homes to be of a class and at a price within the reach of the workmen, have not been carried out, individual activity has grown remarkably as is shown by the reports made to the council. The increase of $100,000 for May over April, in building permits, is a good sign. April permits were $192,000, while those for May were $292,000.

An early report of the committee appointed by the Chamber of Commerce on housing, is looked for, and when that comes the movement to supply homes for the many thousands men who are waiting for places to live before moving to Janesville, will be under headway. It is to be noticed that in the action of the Federal Reserve banks in reference to credit, there has been no curtailment in the way of providing funds for construction of homes. The restriction has been in speculative industrial establishments only so far as loans are concerned.

Much private capital in Janesville is going into building and this is the best sign of all. Not only has it the element of good investment, but there is also the local pride and local patriotism side to be looked at and commended.

ARMENIA OBJECTS TO MANDATE.
It is rather disconcerting to the supporters of a mandate for Armenia to have the Bishop of Erzerum telling us that Armenia wants no mandate and no American army there. The Bishop of Erzerum is one of the titular heads of the Armenian Christian church and speaks with more than clerical authority. Armenia is fearful that an American mandate would make them subjects of the United States. The Armenians are of very jealous temper and disposition and after centuries of subjection they aspire to complete independence. They do want arms and munitions and food loaned to them to keep off the Turks individually, or the Kurds, backed by a Turkish army. This should be given them to the fullest measure asked.

Now that the United States senate by an overwhelming vote has defeated the proposal to give Armenia a mandate, there can be some action to give support to the request of the Bishop and other heads of the new Armenian republic along lines of humanitarianism and in a true American spirit.

SUPREME COURT TAKES AWAY ANOTHER WET HOPE.
In its decision Tuesday that it is not necessary to submit a constitutional amendment to a referendum and that a later referendum cannot be invoked to overturn the action of the legislature in nullifying an amendment, the United States supreme court gave a severe blow to the hope of the wets and is a final decision on one of the two important questions raised by the attorneys for the whiskey and beer interests.

It has been the plan of the Wisconsin liquor interests to have a referendum on the issue of the amendment if the court had permitted. That hope now has gone glimmering. There remains but one more decision for the court to make public, and that is the general one of the constitutionality of the 18th amendment which is proposed next Monday.

MORE MONEY FOR SCHOOLS.
There is no surprise over the fact that the school fund has been seriously depleted, in fact has gone with the rising tide of costs. We have an idea that public affairs can be conducted on the same old scale while all private costs are jumping high. That is the trouble with the postal department. That was the real reason for the special session of the legislature—to provide more funds needed to carry on a business which has jumped in cost to heights not at all anticipated. The council is asked to provide additional money. Next year it is to be hoped a budget will be made so clearly definite as to care for all these possibilities. The time to begin is right now.

The ladies of the D. A. R. of Ft. Atkinson are to be commended for the zeal they have shown in the preservation of the aboriginal intaglio at that place and for their success in securing the necessary funds to erect a tablet which will be dedicated on Saturday of this week. We have been slow in appreciation of the value of our Wisconsin antiquities.

of $7,000,000, for which certain of the church's representatives set it down, under the most heavily questioned. The whole affair, from the point of view of the evangelical churches in this country, has brought about results tending to impair faith and harmony whether within or among these churches.

To drive there is a limit. Perhaps the limit is not so much in the number of the donors, but in the uncertainty whether the material support, on behalf of movements property of the intellect or spirit, has gone far enough. People tire of a million dollars' worth of political candidacy, five million dollars' worth of propaganda, ten million dollars' worth of college endowments and a hundred million dollars' worth of Christian uplift. Money may be necessary for all such high activities, but the money end of them has been tremendously in view, and the public tends to react.

—New York Sun and Herald.

The Fort Atkinson Intaglio
This very interesting Indian monument formerly formed one of a group of seventeen conical mounds and effigy mounds on the bank of the river on the highway leading from Ft. Atkinson to Lake Koshkonong. By 1892 all of the mound associated with it had been almost obliterated by cultivation. Several of these mounds had been explored and broken. Battery vessels and stone implements found within the mounds which they contained. Surrounding the mounds was an Indian village site from which numerous stone and other implements have been collected in the course of years.

The indications are that there was at one time a huge panther, an animal form also referred to by the Indians as representing the "water spirit." It is the reverse of the usual effigy mound being dug out of the soil of the mound instead of erecting it. Its total length is about 150 feet, the long tapering tail being much longer than the body. The greatest width of the body is 30 feet and the greatest depth of the same about 3 feet. It lies in a position parallel to the highway.

This intaglio is now the only existing example of this particular type of prehistoric monument in the state of Wisconsin, being one of only eleven intaglio effigies ever found among hundreds of effigy mounds in the state. These others were located in mound groups in Milwaukee, Pewaukee, Theresa and Baraboo. All have been destroyed. The intaglio was first surveyed by Dr. J. A. Lapham of Milwaukee, distinguished pioneer archeologist, in the year 1880, during a visit to the Ft. Atkinson region, and is described in his classic work, "The Antiquities of Wisconsin." Rev. Stephen D. Peck, another Wisconsin archeologist of note, also visited the site in later years and described the mound and intaglio in the American Antiquarian of which he was for many years the editor.

Dr. Arlow B. Stout, an officer of The Wisconsin Archeological society, made a survey of the mound and the society interested in the Ft. Atkinson Chapter D. A. R. in its preservation, the ladies obtaining a lease of the land upon which it lies. The purchase of the land by the society would not only secure the mound and the intaglio but would also secure the lease and it became necessary to take other measures for its preservation. In 1916, the property was acquired by purchase, the D. A. R. and the city council of Ft. Atkinson each furnishing a part of the funds.

The park surrounding the intaglio has now been laid out and the Indian monument will be dedicated and a fine bronze marker unveiled on the site by the D. A. R. with appropriate exercises on the afternoon of Saturday, June 5.

Many members of both the Wisconsin Archeological society and the Wisconsin Historical society will attend from many Wisconsin cities. With the preservation of the celebrated Man Mound near Baraboo, which occurred in 1908, the purchase of the site of the ancient Indian City at Aztalan, near Lake Mills, now being arranged for, and the formal dedication of the Ft. Atkinson intaglio, the three most important Indian earthworks in the state, will be saved to Wisconsin people.

The ladies of Ft. Atkinson chapter, D. A. R., are deserving of every praise for what they have accomplished in rescuing the intaglio from destruction.

WILL AMERICANS SPOIL PARIS THEATERS?
The big influx of Americans expected in Paris this summer will have a destructive effect on the French stage, which has already deteriorated alarmingly as a result of the great influx of tourists since the war. Such at least is the opinion of many French critics. As Pierre Veber says in Fantasio:

"Our visitors will seek what pleases the eye, rather than what pleases the mind. If you want to America—supposing the exchange rate made it possible!—you would choose preferably the American stage, which did not require a profound acquaintance with the language. Now you are going to have 500,000 spectators, mostly ignorant of our tongue. What are you going to offer them? Plays? They won't understand them. Farces? They won't think them funny. Operettas? Americans don't care for music that is at all complicated. Operas? They will be bored to death. There is nothing left but the music hall. And they won't go to enjoy the chorus, or the scenery, or the music. I will let you guess what the chief attraction for them will be: they will find it in the foyer rather than on the stage. Thus do we give foreigners a false notion of Parisian life."

DESCHANEL REVIVES ANCIENT POIR.
Deschanel is a president who takes care of the nation's prestige.

The receptions at the Elysee are once more the scene of brilliant uniforms and gaudy trimmings. The diplomatic corps is required to wear full dress and the full dress of a diplomat is like that of a South American general.

The first prize at the latest reception was easily carried off by a secretary of the British embassy, who dazzled in a costume of red and gold. Thus do they "save the republic!"—Le Populaire, Paris.

SODA FOUNTAINS IN PARIS.
Absinthe has gone. Will the French, like the Americans, go "dry"? Some seem to think so. New foreign bars are being opened in Paris with soda-fountains and the full dress of a diplomat will sport cocktails of ice-cream and water.

The Americans live on this combination of ices and water. It is their favorite drink, just as it is the polar bear's. But will French stomachs be able to stand such a diet?

Dyspepsia specialists, "your harvest is coming!"—Figaro, Paris.

JUST FOLKS
THE WISDOM OF FATHER.
Pa doesn't know a thing about an engine in a motor car, but he knows a thing or two about the different parts, but couldn't tell you where they are. He never fixes a car, but he knows when something is wrong, and he always gets a man to fix it. An' says he's found that in the end that always is the wisest plan. Yet every day he gets into the engine steps, or isn't acting as it should. He climbs out of his seat an' goes in front an' looks beneath the hood.

"He couldn't tell what's out of gear if it was plain as day," says Ma.

"An' yet to see him stand there you'd think he understood the car."

In all the times he's stopped an' looked, he's never once found what was wrong. We've always have to sit an' wait till some mechanic comes along.

An' yet you haven't any doubt that he would fix it if he could.

Because he seems so very wise when he looks underneath the hood."

The other day the car broke down, an' Pa got out an' usual way.

"I'll have a look," says he to Ma, "an' maybe save a long delay."

An' Ma she smiled an' winked at me while Pa was standing an' looking at the engine.

An' looked at everything there is to look at underneath the hood.

"When you get through admiring it," says Ma, "perhaps you'll telephone for help an' maybe we'll get home for tea."

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT
As a remedy, we would suggest that the candidates frame a few brief statements of their positions on certain matters. These could be printed on handbills and given to the audience and the speechmaking could go on, without interruption.

Back in the days when the tariff was the most exciting question before the people and we having regular editorial board run of popularity it was our embarrassing experience to be seated on the stage during the speech of a distinguished Wisconsin senator who made one of the best speeches about the tariff, again yelled the man, "How about the tariff?"

"How about the tariff?" persisted the loud-mouthed one.

The senator tore at his collar, turned purple with rage and yelled: "Where the tariff is too high, it should be lowered, and where it is too low, it should be high."

Some people wonder how Dante could have written so entertainingly about hell without having been there. That's easy. When he was a young man he conducted a column in a daily newspaper.

THE PLACE FOR IT TO VANISH.
Headline in New York World: "Whisky Vanishes Under the Noses of U. S. Guardians."

"How about the tariff?" again yelled the man.

"We are a nation of freemen and—" continued the senator.

The senator tore at his collar, turned purple with rage and yelled: "Where the tariff is too high, it should be lowered, and where it is too low, it should be high."

The Theater Tax
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.
Washington, June 2.—The contribution to the support of the government by those people who pay admissions to the theaters, is estimated at $50,000,000 a year. The average individual who pays 10 or 20 or 30 cents for admission to a theater, pays an additional one or two or three pennies for tax to the government, rarely stops to visualize the sum total of the millions which are annually scraped together and turned over to the Treasury department at Washington to be used in defraying the expenses of the government. Were they to arrive at the treasury, in two horse drays, there would be a string of them six miles long, bearing 2,000 tons of pennies.

Few people appreciate the organization that is necessary in the collection of these pennies, but have some conception of the task of seeing to it that every theater that sells tickets turns in the tax money to the government.

Delinquent Theaters. Last week United States special agents stationed in Chicago made a survey of the situation, to determine whether or not the government is getting all that is coming to it from this amusement tax. It found that the internal revenue district in which Chicago is located there were 150 theaters which were in arrears in the payment of the amounts due the government.

Orders immediately were forwarded from Washington for drastic action in bringing these delinquent theaters into line. The first step was a blanket order was sent out to the 64 districts of internal revenue in the 84 districts to inspect and report on the theaters which were in arrears and to take the necessary action to collect all moneys due to the government. The action taken by the government in this connection is the necessary which knows every performance which is sold to every performance which is sold to the 10 per cent tax on that ticket.

Know All Theaters
That the government is necessary due to the government it is necessary that each collector should know of every theater that is operating in his district. There are no requirements which make it impossible for a theater to give an entertainment without the authorities knowing about it. In the first place, the theater must come into existence in the community in which it exists. The local police authorities see to it that no places of amusement run without proper license. In addition to this, a federal license is required of the theaters.

A little moving picture show which has a seating capacity of not more than 250 must take out a license for which it pays the government $5 a year. If it has more than 250 seats and not more than 500, it must pay $10 a year. If it has more than 500 and not more than 800 seats it must pay $15 a year. If it has more than 800 seats it must pay $20 a year. The law further provides that in cities of 5,000 or less, theaters which have a seating capacity of not more than 250 seats and not more than 500, it must pay $10 a year. If it has more than 500 and not more than 800 seats it must pay $15 a year. If it has more than 800 seats it must pay $20 a year.

A.—This quotation is from the Law of Manu, the Moses of India.

districts may cover an entire state or it may cover two states. The Maryland district, for example, includes that state and in addition the District of Columbia. The collector has his headquarters at Baltimore. He has a deputy collector in Washington. It is the duty of this deputy collector to see that Washington pays all of its internal revenue taxes. Among these are the taxes on admissions to theaters, and this deputy collector must make sure that everybody who goes to a show is paying the proper tax and that the tax is finding its way regularly into the treasury.

The deputy collector at Washington has 15 agents working under him and the city is divided among them. They look over the list regularly and see that collections do not fail. In addition to this, they must know that each theater is paying in the full and correct amount due the government. That they may assure themselves on this point they have the privilege of going to any place of entertainment at any time and examining the books. This is not sufficient, because they must know that the books are not being falsified to the best of the individual theater manager.

Protection Through Printer.
There are many devices to which the internal revenue service resorts to assure themselves that the government is not being defrauded. The most ingenious of these, and one for which the printer is held in the law itself, is that of requiring that all printers who make tickets for theaters shall report to the collector of internal revenue. Most of the theater tickets, in the United States are printed by four or five firms that specialize in the work. Not more than 5 per cent of tickets are printed in local shops. The detail of clearing all tickets printed through these large concerns is well understood and from them the government gets copies of every bill presented every theater manager on the subject.

Bills Sent to Collectors
These bills are distributed to the collectors and the deputy collectors and finally to the individual agents who are assigned to the examination of given theaters. An agent, knowing that a certain theater had ordered a billion tickets in a year would expect the sales reported and the stock of tickets on hand to tally a million. If there is any discrepancy in the sales reported and the stock of tickets on hand to tally a million, it would be a performance so dangerous that there is little probability of either printer or exhibitor resorting to it.

Tickets Well Regulated
The law requires that all places of amusement must use tickets and that these must show the amount of the tax and the total, and also imposes a penalty for failure to use tickets or for the use of tickets not properly printed. This does it become impossible for a theater to print tickets that sell for any other amount than that which appears on the ticket. So the government is assured that it will ultimately receive from any theater the amount of money called for by the tickets that are printed for that theater.

The DIARY OF AN ENGAGED GIRL

LINDSEY'S CHILDHOOD WEDDING IS SATISFIED AT LAST. I demonstrated my complete emancipation from all family traditions today, as far as dress is concerned, and I feel happy better for it. It was this way. I was out shopping, out sewing, wonder of wonders, and bought a scarlet evening dress. That fact in itself may not mean much to the average mind, but it spelled deliberate revolution as well as joy to me. Ever since I was a tiny girl I have loved scarlet and yearned to robe my body in it, but it has always been taboo. The family objected to any such color, and that was all there was to it. I can remember clutching any stray pieces of scarlet from various work-baskets, in my childhood, and bearing them off tenderly to my best beloved dolls in their closets. I never failed to flaunt the persuasive color, my dolls could. I wonder if all girl-children have this longing for a forbidden color. Well, as it may, this morning, as I was primly selecting an afternoon frock, I passed a most gorgeously pink, flame-colored dress. It seemed to have been whipped into wavy billows of warmth, and blown into its dainty shape by the breeze of true ecstasy in fashioning its every fold. There it shimmered, before my dazzled eyes, tempting me as I have never before. I was admiring its insinuating loveliness in my direction in a most personal way. To me it represented youth, love, peace and joy. I thought without hesitating a moment, and it is now on its way to the house of my mother. This is all that I know for the present, that is all I need to know. The shimmering beauty is mine, whether I ever wear it or not. But I am planning to do so this very evening because Jack is going to take me to dinner and then to some affair at some friends of Ted Sloan's afterwards. I feel as though my very fate hung upon my wearing that dress of my dreams. One hour later, it has just arrived. It lies before me now in all its beauty, and the room seems lit with a great radiance, and my senses are singing deliciously in response to its every lure. I suppose my feelings may be compared to those of the boy who stands before his first dress suit, speechless with delight, and stirred to new life by the fact that he is of the world at last. Funny how young things get this way, isn't it? I wish Jack would have intuition enough to bring me some American Beauties, but then he never dreams that I am about to play the part of My Lady of the Flames this evening. I think he would feel a bit restless if he did. No matter how he feels, I am sure he will think me lovely in this frock. Now I know why red has been used by royalty so much in the past. Those old kings and queens just naturally knew that it made for beauty and grace. And that that quality was necessary to keep their devotees in a state of joyful adoration, despite the many troubles the crowned ones piled. Yes, the monarchs of old were true students of psychology, I'll say. Here I sit shivering in the most delicious anticipation in the world. I feel like the heroine of my own movie somehow or other. Whether I shall have my audience with me, or again me, only the powers know. My fate is on the knees of the gods! (To be continued)

A SAFE VACATION—1

Among the numerous dangers of being alive is the danger of picking up typhoid infection while off on the quest of health. In the recent past, returned vacationists down with typhoid fever have been a common sight. But typhoid fever, being strictly a fifth disease, prevailing in direct ratio with the filthiness of the people of the community, is becoming less and less common. Even in the more enlightened districts of the United States, one would find a certain suspicion among the populace that flies around the place betray filthy surroundings. Cakes and other food handlers ought to be certified in good summer resorts. The guest has a right to know that those who handle and serve his food are not typhoid carriers. If this seems a little far-fetched at first blush, it is not so when you consider that certified milk, which is an attractive detail of many good resorts. Without certifying the health authorities, the water or cook has not had typhoid fever or is not still eliminating typhoid bacilli and possibly contaminating the food therewith? This is the only assurance of safety the guest has, unless he is protected against typhoid infection by anti-typhoid vaccination or prophylaxis.

Flies, convey an unquestionable fifth direct to the food on the table from their favorite feeding and breeding places and human food handlers unconsciously contaminating the food they prepare and serve. The two chief sources of typhoid epidemics today. Water is seldom responsible. But if circumstances force the vacationist to drink water from a doubtful source, it may be rendered safe by dissolving in each five gallons of water and allowing to stand at least half an hour before drinking, one five-grain capsule of fresh chlorinated lime. This does not affect the taste or palatability of the water. If the milk is not certified it may be rendered safe by pasteurizing at home or incamp. This is done by heating the milk up to 140 degrees Fahrenheit and holding at that temperature 30 minutes, then cooling. This destroys practically all disease germs.

Fruits or vegetables eaten uncooked should be very thoroughly washed, even though they seem clean when delivered; this is to remove not only possible pollution with typhoid germs, but also the invisible eggs of worms. It should no longer be necessary to caution the camper that water which is perfectly clear, perfectly pure and perfectly cold is not necessarily free from pollution from neighboring outhouse, cesspool or ground drain. QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. Gailus. May I ask you to kindly republish a column for me about relieving a callus on the sole of the foot? A friend told me about relieving you suggested in your column, and it proved extremely satisfactory. The callus has been very painful at times, on the ball of the foot. (Mrs. R. C.) ANSWER—Paint the caulk the foot twenty minutes in hot water and drying thoroughly with the 30 grains of salicylic acid. It is a sure cure. This quickly dried, in a week or ten days the callus will be softened and easily removable. Of course, if it comes, it will return unless you adopt more hygienic shoes. Tanager. 1. Is rupture a cause of sterility? 2. Is there any other cure than operation for rupture in a man 25 years old? (M. J.) ANSWER—1. No. 2. No. A Good Thing. I have been learning, a little first aid, and I understand that in case of poisoning you should make the victim vomit. Would like to know what should be given to do this. (E. J.) ANSWER—A good emetic. You can't keep a good emetic down. Tablespoonful or two of common water in a glassful of warm water at a nice tepid temperature is one good emetic. Teaspoonful of mustard.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Will you please recommend some good tooth powder? Precipitated chalk, seven drams; powdered camphor, one-half dram; powdered cedar root, one dram. Mix by sifting several times through coarse muslin.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I want to have my girl come to our house to dinner. Should I invite her or should I say mother? ROBERT.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: What do you think a young girl should do when a boy waits at her? What kind and color would you suggest for a graduation dress? BEAUTY.

She should not show that she noticed the wink. A simple white dress would be the most appropriate for graduation.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a 20 years old. My husband is 20 years older than myself and has two children. One of them is married—the daughter whom I raised. Now the boy has come to stay with us. He has been here four years and my husband hasn't been real good to me since he came. He is not here now. He is good to me and when he is he treats me coldly. I don't want to complain, but my step-son is breaking up our life. He has knocked me down and I have had blue marks on my arms for weeks when he has hit and beat me. He buys things on time and charges them to me. When I tell his father he just says that I am as much to blame as his son. What am I to do? I cannot live this way. I have told the father and son and they don't care. I keep the table and buy my own clothing. I have several hogs and two cows and my husband never gives me any money from them. I don't want all of it, but some. He says that the boy has to have clothes. I am not strong and cannot stand much. They both treat me mean.

It is better to do effective acting than complain. To tell your husband that you must have money does no good. To serve only such things as you make and never buy, bread, four or delicacies would bring about results. Your husband would want them and in order to have them would give you money. To go with money to buy flour.

The little money you are able to earn you should spend on clothes for yourself. If you look out for yourself first your husband and his son will have more respect for you. You cannot possibly keep the respect of your husband and the boy unless you dress respectably. Don't ask if you can buy certain things. Simply do it and don't say anything about it afterward.

Do not pay for things the boy buys and has charged to you. The father can be forced to pay, but not you. It is a great mistake to give up your own people because your husband wants it. When you married you did not promise to become a slave. Marriage should not break your will. Show your husband that you can be as big a tyrant as he is if necessary.

My husband never buys a thing for the house or to eat and I have to buy it with the money from the milk powder and a few chickens.

I think the world of my husband and could not bear the thought of giving him up. He doesn't want me to have a thing to do with my folks and I love my people dearly.

Wilson Will Not Be Candidate For The Presidency

Will Make Effort to Keep North Dakota from Voting for Him, Though the State is Definitely Instructed.

By DAVID LAWRENCE
(Copyright 1920, by Janesville Gazette.)

Washington, D. C., June 2.—The name of Woodrow Wilson will not be presented to the Democratic National Convention in San Francisco for a third nomination to the presidency. This much has been agreed upon by the president and the Democratic National committee who left here today for San Francisco.

The president at a lengthy conference with Mr. Cummings, chairman of the Democratic National committee, discussed the kind of a platform which in his judgment, should be adopted. His position was made clear in the letter to Senator Glass to Virginia endorsing the Virginia platform which declares for the peace treaty without reservations which impair its essential integrity.

Has No Preference
As to no preference. He is confident that the Democratic party in convention assembled will see the path to victory in the steady adherence to the principles of the Democratic administration of the last eight years. The president is unshaken from that point of view. He has been for months. He made a statement by him that reasons why he will not be a candidate for a third term to be unnecessary. If the convention should reach a deadlock and revert to Wilson as the only man to make the fight, the president would be amply able to cross that bridge when the convention comes to it. But there is no present prospect that such a thing will happen and to issue a third declaration might be construed as an expectation that the convention might actually reach such a point.

Mr. Wilson professes modesty and believes no such contingency will arise.

North Dakota is Embarrassed
On the other hand there is one embarrassing situation in connection with the vote of the North Dakota delegation. There is some confusion about the record. It would appear that the delegation is "instructed" but in the primary it said only the name of Woodrow Wilson was voted for. Some people believe the North Dakota delegation is in duty bound to present the name of Mr. Wilson on the first ballot. Some of the newspapers of President Wilson were in the convention following two terms of office. He received the ballot of one state for a third term. This, it is contended, might be construed as an indication of the relative esteem in which the Democratic Convention held its leader. Certainly if Mr. Wilson's name is voted on by North Dakota the record would show the usual large number of ballots for the active contenders like Palmer and McAdoo and a negligible vote for President Wilson himself.

To prevent such a situation from arising friends of the president will see to it that the North Dakota delegation doesn't vote for Wilson on the first ballot. Indeed the present plan is to not allow the president's name to go before the convention at all.

No. He Won't Dictate
Mr. Cummings leaves for San Francisco with a full knowledge of the president's desires. He goes really as the personal representative of the president at the Democratic National Convention. He goes with no plan to dictate the choice of the convention. It is to be a free and independent convention. In the judgment of the president, should be on the spot to answer questions. There is only one thing the president does want and that is the selection of a candidate who can make the fight on the platform that is to be written. He doesn't want to see a man named who will equivocate or back track, and whether Mr. Wilson sees fit to address a letter to the Democratic

LICENSES FOR 200 SINCE YEAR BEGAN

County Clerk Lee Has Been Busy Man/ Breaking Record of County.

An even 200 marriage license applications had been given out by Howard W. Lee, county clerk, up to yesterday for couples of Rock county. The first five months of 1920. Not only is this far greater than last year, but is the record, according to Mr. Lee, for the county. It averages enough for one day, until next July 12, including all Sundays and holidays. Last year at this time there was about one license issued a day.

June and October are the best months of the year for the marriage license business, said Mr. Lee. "During August and October the number drops considerably. At the present rate we should have between 300 and 400 license by the end of the year."

The county clerk stated that he believed the present high wages for the laboring man has the most to do with the numbers going into matrimony.

Of the licensees just issued one was for W. J. Viney to wed Mary K. Viney, the widow of his brother. Of interest to sporting fans locally is the license issued to Raymond C. Edler, Chippewa Falls, who has starred as a member of the Lakota, Cardinal basketball team, to marry Sarah E. McManus, this city.

Others issued over the holiday:

Edwin W. Vogel and Mayme E. McKiffon, Janesville; Herman W. Jorgenson, Stoughton; and Mae J. Keating, Janesville; Carl W. Huhn and Thelma A. Kaufman, Edgerton; Louie C. Black, Oregon, and Edna M. Lewis, Evansville; Lawrence E. Astin and Charlotte L. Hutson, Milton Junction; Archie P. Yarwood, Brooklyn, and Lavina E. Waller, Evansville; Fred. MILTON

[By Gazette Correspondent.]
Milton, June 2.—Monday, May 31, closed one of the most successful years in the career of Milton high school. The closing exercises began with the baccalaureate sermon in the Seventh Day Baptist church, Sunday evening, May 23. Pastor Jordan preached the sermon, and he was assisted by Pastors Burdick and Carr.

Wednesday evening, May 26, the village hall was the scene of the senior class day exercises. A class prophecy was acted out as the members of the class pictured themselves in ten years. The audience saw the young people in the following roles: Lucy Clark, high school teacher; Edna Sunby and Myrl Davis, quilters; Elmer and Elwood Shumway, civil engineers in Alaska; Anna McBride, old maid; Constance Bennett, Lella Gray, and Kathryn Maxson, Redpath Lacyum workers; Helen Jordan and Beulah Lanphere, society ladies; Le Roy Rasmussen, Beulah's chauffeur; Anna Hanauiska, Paris milliner; Grant, bachelor, about to be married; Elmer Bingham, Chicago lawyer; Clarence Gray, opera singer.

The girls of the class gave a one act farce, "The Truth About Jane," that everyone enjoyed. At the close of the program everybody joined in a hearty singing. "Milton, the School That Is the Best, We Love Thee More Than All the Rest."

The commencement exercises were held in the college gymnasium Thursday night. The girls (having broken away from the convention) and the boys looked especially pretty. The effect of the decorations made and put up by the juniors was very pleasing. The program of the evening follows: Prayer, Rev. J. H. Burdick; salutatory, Myrl N. Davis; vocal solo, Frances Babcock; address, Prof. A. T. Weaver, University of Wisconsin; vocal duet, Clarence Bennett and Ethlyn Sayre; valedictory, Edna May Sunby; music, High school girls' chorus; presentation of diplomas, Prof. A. V. Eren; benediction, Rev. W. S. Carr.

Those who did not attend the school picnic at Lake Koshkonong Friday are now regretting it. It was a big day for all who went. After receiving report cards, note books, Monday, the school marched to the cemetery to honor the memory of the old soldiers. The principal and teachers are thoroughly appreciative of the co-operation and harmony exemplified during the whole year.
